Tremendous Downpour of Rain
at Tucson.In Two Hours Nearly Three Inches of Water Falls—Much Damage Reported.

From the Tucson Star.

Tucson people have been wanting rain for some time and wanting it bad. Early yesterday morning they got all the rain they wanted, and got it quick, too. Just about midnight the entertainment opened with a brilliant, though silent electrical display. Later the deep music of rolling thunder was added and the lightning flashes became almost continuous.

About 1 o'clock the flood gates were opened and a tremendous downpour set in. In about two hours' time 2 3/4 inches of water was reported by a local observer to have fallen. Some of the citizens probably thought as many feet had come down.

Among the many items of damage may be mentioned that the Fort Lowell road wagon bridge was carried away and part of it lodged against the Stone avenue bridge, which has two piers torn away, thus making it unsafe for travel. Part of the piers of the S. P. railroad bridge were carried away and the eastbound passenger train was delayed seven hours while the bridge was temporarily repaired to allow the train to cross, and left here at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Down in the city some lively scenes were being enacted. The streets were soon mimic rivers, and the rush of water so great that many residences, especially in the lower part of town, were flooded and several inches of mud on the floors this morning tell the tale of the downpour.

On the corner of Meyer and McCormick streets Wing Ho kept a grocery. The end wall of this building fell out and half of the heavy mud roof fell in, badly damaging his stock of goods by the rain and mud. The proprietor escaped injury by running out into the storm before the collapse. Adjoining the store room on the north for half of the block the adobe buildings are ruined by the rear wall being undermined and falling.

The courtesans of McCormick street found their rooms filling with mud and water, and the roofs and walls threatening to come down at any moment, and rushed into the street for safety, in many cases clad in a single garment.

Many of the residents of Main street and Pennington had exciting experiences and their property more or less damaged.

The tracks of the S. P. yards were covered with sand and mud, a force of men being at work yesterday forenoon shoveling them off.

The roof of a room on Congress street occupied by Bradley's candy kitchen had a great hole washed in the mud and the floor and his show cases, etc., plastered with mud in the morning. He had just moved out of a room farther up the street on account of an unsafe roof, and yesterday he gave up the struggle and stored his goods at home, as he did not care to take the chances of general destruction from a collapse of the whole structure.

That no one was injured seems almost a miracle, yet no one was reported hurt. The damage from mud and water is not very great and most of the old adobes destroyed will not count as a very serious loss, so the city has escaped very fortunately.
